Around the Police Station

Chief of Detectives Leal has added to his laurels for one week of active detective service since his appointment, by capturing Emory Harris, the negro jail-breaker. Leal went to Maui on Tuesday, and yesterday morning wirelessly to Sheriff Jarrett that he had Harris in custody, and would return with him on the Claudine this morning. Leal made a quick move in leaving town Tuesday having received a tip that Harris had gone to Maui on the bark Fooing Suey. He lost little time after arriving there Tuesday night and landed his man shortly after daybreak. Harris slipped out of the station house a couple of weeks ago, and although rumors were that he was on this island and presumably in the vicinity of Leilehua, yet Leal got the straight tip to look for him on Maui. Harris is a desperate negro, who has broken out of the station house three times. He was a "bad nigger" while serving in the navy as a member of the U. S. S. Iroquois crew and the navy was glad to get rid of him. When he broke out of the station house he was awaiting trial on a charge attempting to murder another negro.

Sheriff Explains.

With reference to the notification sent by the Sheriff to Captain Fay, United States Marine Corps, that the latter was operating an auto without the formality of having been given a chauffeur's license or certificate, and the officer stating that he had his certificate in his possession, Sheriff Jarrett stated yesterday that the former examiner of chauffeurs, had neglected to certify on Captain Fay's application for a license, that such license and certificate had been granted and issued.

The custom is for an intending chauffeur to make out an application on blanks provided at the police station. The examiner of chauffeurs takes the applicant in hand, and gives him a try-out to see whether he is qualified to operate a machine. If he qualifies the examiner fills out a card and hands it to the applicant. He is then supposed to endorse on the application the fact that a certificate, and the number thereof, has been issued. The chief clerk of the police department makes up his card index from this certification. As there was no certification on Captain Fay's application, the letter, with a dozen more to other people operating machines, was written and forwarded.

"Roller" Is Convicted.

H. Denny and a Portuguese named Manuel Costa met in the rear of a Chinese saloon in Chinatown on the night of April 5 and drank considerable "dago red" together. Costa lay down in the back room and later Denny lay down alongside of him. Costa was talking with another man and he remembers feeling a hand in his hip pocket. He did not pay much attention at the time, but later when he went to Ala Park, he found that his money, amounting to $14.50 was gone. He searched around for his companions and locating Denny, who had a bottle of booze, he turned the man over to Officer Medeiros, and that is the reason why Denny faced Judge Andrade yesterday morning to answer to a charge of larceny in the first degree. Some witnesses state that Denny had no money before he was with Costa in the Chinese saloon but later on he had considerable money, a jag and a bottle of booze. Costa said his money consisted of a ten-dollar gold piece and some silver. The eagle was found on Denny, together with three in silver.

Badges for Chauffeurs.

The back inspector is considering the advisability of recommending that drivers of autos for public hire be required to wear a small badge designating them as public chauffeurs, somewhat in line with the requirement for drivers of horse hacks. Mainland city governments have this regulation. The badges are small and inconspicuous, and may be worn under the lapel.

Apana Makes Raid.

Apana, the Chinese detective, raided a paikau gambling joint at Waikiki on Tuesday afternoon and bagged half a dozen Chinese. When Apana got into the room, after the watchman had shouted a warning, he found the gamblers making a desperate effort to get out. One Chinese was busy scraping up money, dominoes, dice and buttons from the table. The men were convicted in police court and fined $9 and costs each.

JAPANESE SQUADRON PROGRAM.

A Real Sale

The closing out sale we are now conducting is the most successful in the history of our mercantile business. More sales were made, and more cash taken in by our sales force, on Monday, than on the day before Christmas last year. It was a record day.

Ladies Recognize The Value of our offerings and are quick to take advantage of them. The sale is genuine, bona fide, legitimate. It will continue until every article advertised is sold. The old style of renewing stock as the sale advances will not be practiced here, we are selling out, not buying in.
